STATEMENT OF DESIGN RESEARCH AND PEDAGOGY

Anklesaria situates his work within core architectural values of place making, materiality, tectonics, craft and construct. Concurrently, the work aspires for radical engagement reframing questions of spatial justice, ecology, globalization, empowerment, socio-politics, and temporal resilience - an architecture that is at once transformative and rooted in place. Ongoing design research projects investigate agency at both architectural and urban scales – from investigating urban markets in London, to the pavilion as an agent provocateur and vehicle of spatial critique. Anklesaria has taught across the design studio curriculum - including introductory and core design studios as well as comprehensive design, urban design and graduate level expanded practices studios. Seminars have addressed questions of architectures complicity with neoliberalism, the urban informal, and architectural agency in the global south.

DESIGN RESEARCH [ONGOING]

- 2019-ongoing Activating Collective Histories: An itinerant pavilion connecting the three museums of Le Corbusier
Awarded 2019 Art Omi Architecture Design Fellowship, Ghent, NY
Proposal for an itinerant pavilion which will serve as a temporary attachment to each of the three built museums of Le Corbusier. Through its itinerant condition, the pavilion will be an agent provocateur activating the collective histories of the museums, its key constituents, local stake holders, diverse publics and the larger community of artists and architects.
- 2019-ongoing Field Notes from London: The case of markets and food futures from the ordinary to the uncanny
Awarded 2019 Richard Rogers Fellowship, Graduate School of Design, Harvard University
The primary objective of the research is to study the traditional markets of London as well as the role of activist architects in generating spaces of empowerment within, or of consequence to, traditional markets.

TEACHING

- Spring 2020 Yale School of Architecture, Yale University, New Haven, CT / Critic in Architecture
ARCH 111B: Advanced Graduate Studio on Housing w/ Anupama Kundoo
Urban Eco-Communities
The studio investigates the future of high-density urban co-living prototypes considering the utopian city of Auroville in Pondicherry, India as site and context. The studio is an investigation into prototypes for co-housing in high-density, urban contexts of the global south, specifically using the city of Auroville – a utopian 1968 experiment in commoning, as site and prompt.
Feldman Prize awarded to Students Thomas Mahon, Camille Chabrol & Alex Pineda for their project Beds & Beds, that considers the relationship between housing and food across various scales of commoning. The Feldman Prize is awarded to the best Advanced Studio Project across both semesters at Yale School of Architecture.

- Fall 2019 School of Architecture at Taliesin, Spring Green, WI & Scottsdale, AZ / Visiting Teaching Fellow
ARC 601: Graduate Design Studio: Radical Coop: Food Architecture and Temporality.
New forms of Architectural Thinking in the Climate Emergency.
The goal of the studio is to explore principles of a circular economy and degrowth as these relate both to the temporal cycles of food production as well as temporal attributes of architecture.
- ARC 687: The Architectonics of Temporality: The Popup & The Pavilion
The goal of the seminar is to investigate architectures of temporality in the context of the modernist project and after. The seminar mines canonical projects that seek to establish a radical new configuration of architecture and its relationship with time. It unpacks ways in which these architectures are relevant in framing social, cultural and ecological questions of our time.
- Spring 2019 College of Architecture Art Planning, Cornell University Ithaca, NY / Visiting Critic
Option Studio w/ Philippe Rahm
The studio calls for a radically reorganization of the architectural project around questions of planetary sustenance considering meteorological phenomena like albedo, thermal mass, reflexivity, emissivity as ordering devices for a new architecture in an age of climate crisis.
- ARCH 3307/6307/4407: Seminar: Practices of Empowerment and Resistance
The seminar considers a range of projects as precedents for conceiving and practicing an architecture of spatial agency across a range of geographies. The goal is to present a set of drawings that analyze agency across various programs, cultures, scales and territories
- Fall 2018 College of Architecture Art Planning, Cornell University Ithaca, NY / Visiting Critic
ARCH 5115: Third Year Graduate Core Design Studio: Expanded Practices Studio w/ Lily Chi
The studio investigates the potential for architecture to act as an enabler for new forms and modes of cultural praxis, by proposing an Arsenal of Cultural Practice, at the site of The City Museum by Le Corbusier in Ahmedabad.
Publication: PLATE M3_18f w/ Lily Chi, AAP, Cornell University
- ARCH 3308/6308/4408: Seminar: Practices of Empowerment and Resistance
The seminar seeks to unpack new ways of conceiving and practicing an architecture of empowerment and spatial agency across diverse geographies and cultures in an age of economic disparity, ecological crisis, and political obscurantism.
- 2017-2018 School of Architecture, Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, NY / Visiting Assistant Professor
- Spring 2018 ARCH 202: Second Year Design Studio: Library in Chinatown, NYC
The studio raises questions regarding the nature of public space in NYC through the design of community library in China town. How can the library manage multiple publics, be inclusive and be typologically reconstituted as a 'living room for the city'.
- Fall 2017 ARCH 201: Second Year Design Studio: Kindergarten in Staten Island, NYC
Studio introduces students to the relationships between landscape, siting and built form through the design of a kindergarten on a sloping landscape. Spatial explorations address scale, tectonics, materiality and construct.
- Spring 2017 ARCH 302: Comprehensive Design Studio: Community Boat House
This comprehensive design studio explores the cultural and architectural issues intrinsic to the siting of a university rowing boathouse along a public waterway while also incorporating community outreach programs. Students work in teams to develop comprehensive designs that integrate aspects of environmental stewardship, accessibility, site conditions, life safety, environmental systems, structural systems, building envelope systems and assemblies.
- 2012-2014 School of Architecture, Syracuse University, Syracuse, NY / Assistant Professor on Tenure Track

- Spring 2014 ARC 500: Thesis Research Studio: Informal-Redux
The Thesis Research Studio is an alternative pedagogical model to the tradition of the individual thesis project. It involves a specific and focused area of research based on faculty expertise within which students produce a thesis. The Informal-Redux research studio builds upon the work done in the Thesis Research Seminar, to ask questions of how architectural agency can be located within the realm of the Urban Informal.
Thesis Award: Student Betsy Daniel
Thesis Award: Student Sarah Guardia-Avyar
Thesis Award: Student Sean Falconer
- Fall 2013 ARC 505: Thesis Research Seminar (TRS): Informal-Redux
The Thesis Research Seminar is a three credit pre-thesis seminar to introduce students to the core architectural and urban questions situated within a broad context of urban informality in the Global South.
- ARC 107: First Year Architectural Design Studio
Studio introduces students to first year core design principles including scale, poché, infill as well as technical drawing skills through a series of exercise that move between bodily and architectural scales.
- Summer 2013 Graduate Summer Seminar: Digital Media Workshop
Introductory workshop to digital modelling and drawing (Rhino and Autodesk CAD).
- Spring 2013 ARC 500.9: Seminar: Practices of the Global South: Urban Informality & the Challenge of Slums
Seminar investigates urban informality in the global south and examines how architectural agency is being deployed innovatively toward generating a new and progressive model of architectural practice.
- ARC 208: Second Year Architectural Design Studio
Studio addresses questions of built form, public space and urban inserts through two design exercises – an extension to I.M Pei’s Everson Museum and a Public Art Gallery, on a prominent site in downtown Syracuse.
